The whole show is dreadful, she cried coming out of the menagerie of M. Martin. She had just been looking at that daring speculator working with his hyena, -to speak in the style of the programme. By what means, she continued, can he have tamed these animals to such a point as to be certain of their affection for-- What seems to you a problem, said I, interrupting, is really quite natural. Oh! she cried, letting an incredulous smile wander over her lips. You think that beasts are wholly without passions? I asked her. Quite the reverse; we can communicate to them all the vices arising in our own state of civilization. She looked at me with an air of astonishment. But, I continued, the first time I saw M. Martin, I admit, like you, I did give vent to an exclamation of surprise. I found myself next to an old soldier with the right leg amputated, who had come in with me. His face had struck me. He had one of those heroic heads, stamped with the seal of warfare, and on which the battles of Napoleon are written. Besides, he had that frank, good-humored expression which always impresses me favorably. He was without doubt one of those troopers who are surprised at nothing, who find matter for laughter in the contortions of a dying comrade, who bury or plunder him quite light-heartedly, who stand intrepidly in the way of bullets;-in fact, one of those men who waste no time in deliberation, and would not hesitate to make friends with the devil himself. After looking very attentively at the proprietor of the menagerie getting out of...
