The memo or noteheads, are printed two-on, and the job is one that was secured through creating a design that appealed to the local manager, who, after all, is the man who can buy stationery for at least one chain hotel. Shortly afterward, I showed the same manager a card design to be handed to department guests, and he bought 2,000. Afterwards he bought many advertising blotters, to be placed in guests rooms. When a guest asked for stationery he was handed some of the small blotters, and requested to put one in each letter mailed out. The manager would also mail a few at intervals to the U. C. T. headquarters in all the large cities, where they were placed on the...
