Excerpt: .might be confidently looked for in the mother of six healthy and always hungry kittens. XIII EDITOR WOODSIT A TRUE FRIEND f NE morning--it was a Thursday morn ing, as I distinctly recall--I was much surprised to find that work upon the house had practically been suspended. I was sure there could not have been a strike, for I told the workmen at the beginning that whenever they felt as if they were not getting enough pay they must come to me about it and I would raise their wages. They had already been to me three times and received an increase of pay each time. So I felt moderately secure against a strike. Uncle Si explained the situation briefly. The plasterers were to have begun today, said he, but there is no water for them; so I had to send them away. No water? I cried. No water? Then tell me, I pray, why this noble front yard of ours has been converted into a dreary waste by those vandals with their spades and picks? Why is that deep, wide, ragged ditch still yawning in our faces and threatening the death of every tree at whose roots it crawls? And why did I pay Sibley the plumber forty-five dollars last Saturday night, if it were not for the laying of water pipe in that hideous ditch? No water, indeed! It is nobody s fault but the city s, explained Uncle Si. The pipe...
