Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Jack Odoon a Novel An old man stood on a pier head, scanning the sullen water and lowering sky. He was dressed in the rough garb of a fisherman, and his clothes hung loose upon his bent figure. A boatswain s silver chain was about his neck and the whistle was in his hand; silent now, but he held to the habits of his youth in the infirmity of his age. He knew the portent of the leaden clouds whose shaggy edges dragged upon the black waters; of the curling foam, which the incoming tide, with each repeated breaker, lifted higher upon the sand; and he groaned as he turned at last dejectedly away and followed the shore to a hut, where the pale blue smoke, as it fell to the earth, told of a fireside within which was warmed against the cold and damp without.
