A man shall not be established by wickedness. A liquor-seller builds a fine house on the bodies and souls of men. A gambler wears a blazing diamond pin. The sharp boy cheats his parents or employer. He begs off to see his sick mother, and goes to the circus. He cheats in school examinations. He gets all he can out of a friend, and has no further use for him. He tells lies to cover up his misdeeds. Do these things pay? Certainly not, in the long run. The wicked are snared in their own devices. Teach your boys and girls that sin never pays, but it is always paid, for God is just. We never can deceive God, nor run away from him. A Good Woman (v. 4).--When the pastor talks of the success of his church, and the superintendent talks of his Sunday-school, they say, These good women have done it; without them we could not have got along. A good woman too is the centre of a good home. But there are women of another sort. The pastor says (confidentially), All that trouble in the church started with a few bad-tongued and bad-tempered women. The superintendent says, That class has been spoiled by one vain, mischiefmaking girl. A husband is made ashamed by bad actions of the wife. She runs up bills that he cannot pay, and so ruins his credit. She quarrels with the...
