For once these glassy streams, these smiling plains, The little sorrows of my soul could ease, But now each long-known spot augments my pains, From sad remembrance how it once could please. Oft in the glistening dewes that gemmed yon mead, Blithesome I ve bathed my tiny, truant feet, When some wild gambol lured my jocund tread, To seek from tyrant eyes some lone retreat. Here sported I, when, on swift pinions borne, The airy minutes of my childhood flew; And here arose my youth s effulgent morn, And not a threatening cloud appeared in view. But soon, ah soon! misfortune s blackest gloom The radiance of the opening dawn o ercast, Nor left one ray of comfort to illumine...
